Beyond maritime duties, Wes has a keen interest in technology. His background in coding and logic systems fuels his passion for both hardware and software. Wes currently chairs the American Pilot Association's Navigation Technology Committee.

Raised in Port Arthur, Wes grew up in a shipping-focused household and community. His father, who worked with notable tanker operators, introduced him to the shipping industry and pilotage.

Wes graduated from Texas Maritime Academy, where he met his wife, Stephanie. Continuing the family's maritime legacy, both of their children also attended TMA. Wes embodies a lifelong commitment to the maritime industry.
